SCORE ARE INJURED BY DYNAMITE

1 Man Probably Blown to Pieces—Four Others Dying.

MOUNT VERNON SHAKEN.

100 Pounds of Explosives Set Off Mysteriously—Man in Charge Is Missing.

CITY BRIDGE TORN OUT.

Wires in Streets Down and Houses Damaged as if There Had Been a Cyclone—Shock Felt for Miles.

With one man missing, three persons believed to be fatally injured and more than a score of others known to have been wounded, Mount Vernon is recovering from the shock of the explosion of a ton of dynamite almost in the heart of the city this afternoon.

THE DEAD.
Unidentified Italian, in charge of dynamite, believed to have been blown to pieces.

THE INJURED.
Badenhausen, Miss Grace, No. 27 South Tenth avenue, cut by falling glass.

Freedman, Adolph, No. 52 South Bleeker street.

Freedman, Mrs. Belle, same address.

Freedman, Miss Anna, No. 439 West Lincoln avenue.

Freedman, George, same address.

Harlow, Mrs. George A., No. 25 South and street, reported dying in City Hospital from concussion of the brain.

Hutchinson, Mrs. Archibald, No. 439 West Lincoln avenue.

Mearns, Miss May.

Mearns, Robert.

Mearns, Robert, Jr., four months old, believed to be fatally injured.

Nicholson, Mrs. A., No. 29 South Bond street, reported in dangerous condition at City Hospital.

Rahmco, T., No. 409 West Lincoln avenue.

Sillman, Fred, No. 27 New Haven Railroad street.

Stubbins, Frederick, No. 23 South Bleeker street.

Stubbins, Georgia, same address.

Sullivan, John C., No. 39 New Haven street, reported in dangerous condition at City Hospital.

Sullivan, William H., same address.

The dynamite was stored at the side of the deep rock cut running from the western limits of the city to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad station. It was used in blasting a path for additional tracks by the Eglu-Duty Contracting Company.

The explosion tore a hole in the ground eight feet deep that is now full of water from a hidden spring, wrecked the Bond street bridge over the tracks and broke all the windows within an area of a mile.

Guard Is Missing.
The missing man is an Italian laborer who had charge of the store of dynamite. Just before the explosion he was seen at his post of duty in charge of the red flag with which he warned approaching trains of blasts. One of those supposed to be fatally injured is a child four months old. Mrs. George A. Harlow, living a short distance from the scene of the explosion, was in her kitchen when the shock dropped the ceiling on her head. She has concussion of the brain and can scarcely recover. Four doors away, Mrs. Nicholson was hurled against the wall in a room in her home and is not expected to recover from broken bones and internal injuries.

From the reports of policemen and other officers of the city government it is gathered that the dynamite was carelessly handled. The explosion occurred at a time when most of the men employed on the job were eating their lunch, and none of them was injured.

The force of the explosion, as is usual, was downward, but the upheaval along the sides of the cut hurled large stones for blocks. Many houses were shifted from their foundations, walls were stripped of plaster and furniture was splintered.

A heavy train, bound for New York, was just pulling out of the Mount Vernon station when the explosion occurred and the engineer stopped until the track was clear. In another minute this train would have been alongside the scene of the explosion.

SON TRIES TO SHOOT POLICY KING AL ADAMS

Young Man Is Arraigned in Court as "Louis Anderson," and the Policy Man, Recently Released from Sing Sing, Appeared Against Him.

Louis B. Adams, one of the three sons of Al Adams, the former policy king, who was recently released from Sing Sing prison, made an attempt to kill his father in the real estate office of Pocher & Co., at No. 40 West Eighty-fourth street, last night.

Young Adams was drunk at the time, and his fire had been aroused by the refusal of his father to meet his demands for money. In the midst of an argument in the elder Adams's private office the young man lost his head and, pulling a revolver, made a rush at his father.

He was restrained with the greatest difficulty and locked up in the West Thirtieth street station-house. To-day he was sent to the island for six months by Magistrate Barlow in the Jefferson Market Court at the request of his father, who believes a little prison life will have a sobering effect on him.

GAVE FATHER MUCH TROUBLE.

Young Adams is the secretary and manager of the Diamond Film Shading Company, which has offices on the fourth floor of the building, the ground floor of which his father, under the name of Pocher & Co., occupies as a real-estate office. In the same building another son, Albert Adams, Jr., has law offices. Louis Adams has given his father a great deal of trouble ever since he left Harvard. He has spent much of his time in the Tenderloin and was a familiar figure around the hotels. His father made many efforts to get him to settle down, but without success.

After the elder Adams was sent to Sing Sing, Louis Adams became very industrious and showed a disposition to do something creditable. A friend of his, Mr. Quigley, who is at the head of the Diamond Film Shading Company, took him in as secretary, and when "Al" Adams came out of prison and found how much the boy had done for himself he was delighted and told him so.

BEGAN TO DRINK HEAVILY.

Until yesterday afternoon young Adams had kept straight for a long time, but late in the afternoon he began to drink and finally announced to Mr. Quigley that he was going down to see his father. Quigley tried to dissuade him, but it was useless. Young Adams said he wanted money and must have it.

Just what occurred in the office is not known, for neither Mr. Adams nor any of the clerks would talk about it to-day. It is known that the youth drew the gun and aimed it at his father, for that much was seen by Policeman Colyer, of the West Thirtieth street station, who, while passing the place shortly after Louis Adams went in, heard shouts of "Police!" and "My God, don't shoot your father!" coming from the office of Pocher & Company.

Colyer ran in the place as fast as he could and found young Adams wrestling around the room with a couple of other men. Adams was in a furious rage and was yelling fiercely at his father, who stood before him, grim, silent and haggard.

RUSHED AT HIS FATHER.

Just as Colyer made a grab for the boy he broke away from the other men and rushing at his father put the pistol at his head, but made no attempt to pull the trigger. Quick as a flash Colyer pushed up his hand and then threw him to the floor.

The minute young Adams saw the uniform of the policeman he quit. Colyer asked what he should do and the elder Adams said that the youth must be arrested at once as he was in no condition to be left to himself. The other men in the office told Colyer that his prisoner came in drunk and demanded money from Al Adams. On failing to get it he attacked him with the revolver.

Colyer marched his prisoner around to the station-house where he gave him the name of Louis Anderson. He refused to make any further state-
